There are wonderful festivals all over the world! In Lima, Peru, there's a huge food festival called Mistura in spring. It's been taking place every year since 2008. It's become the biggest food festival in South America. Mistura means mixture, and the festival celebrates all the different kinds of food and drink from Peru. There's tropical fruit from the Amazon, seafood from the ocean, and potatoes, corn, and other vegetables from the countryside. You can try delicious soup, called Inchicapi, made from chicken and nuts, or ceviche, made from raw fish mixed with lemons, tomatoes, and onions. You can eat expensive food in restaurants or you can buy amazing food from the market and eat it outdoors. The festival continues for more than a week, and people sing and dance, as well as enjoy delicious food and drink. Mistura is all about food, but in Korea there's a festival to celebrate mud! The Boryeong Mud Festival has been taking place every summer since 1998, and it's becoming more and more popular. Mud from the beach near Boryeong is very good for the skin, so the festival was started to tell everyone about it. Now the festival has something for everyone. You can throw yourself down a mud slide, swim in a mud pool, and paint mud all over your body. There's also the "mud bucket challenge," in which buckets of mud are poured all over people. If you go to the Boryeong Mud Festival, you can be sure of something--you'll get very muddy!
