Growing Up in Medellín: Decisions Matter

Five years ago, Camila was living in Comuna 13 and attended a local public school. At that time, many of her classmates did not think about sexual health, and unfortunately, two of her best friends became pregnant before finishing 11th grade. This situation changed their lives completely; they dropped out of school and lost many opportunities because teen pregnancy makes studying much harder. Camila chose a different path. She visited a local Casa de la Juventud where medical professionals taught her about sexual health and the correct use of contraception. While she was studying for her final high school exams, she also worked on weekends. She saved money instead of wasting it on expensive clothing or fast fashion trends. Last year, she graduated with honors and applied to college.

1. What were Camila's friends doing when they had to change their life plans?

- A) They were working in a fast fashion store.
- B) They were studying in 11th grade before getting pregnant.
- C) They were visiting universities in Medellín.

2. Where did Camila receive education about sexual health and contraception?

- A) At a local Casa de la Juventud.
- B) In a fast fashion thrift shop.
- C) At a private clinic in El Poblado.

3. What was Camila doing while she was preparing for her final high school exams?

- A) She was buying expensive clothes online.
- B) She was working a weekend job and saving money.
- C) She was traveling around Colombia.

4. Why did Camila avoid fast fashion?

- A) Because she did not like modern clothes.
- B) Because she preferred to save money for her future instead of wasting it.
- C) Because there were no clothing stores in her neighborhood.
